Fund Manager's Comment

In April 2025, the MSCI Asia Pacific Islamic ex Japan Index (MIAPJ) decreased by 1.36% driven by higher-than-expected US import tariff. South Korea became the worst performer among the regions, largely dragged by Samsung Electronics as the company cut earnings outlook for the coming months owing to lower demand for smartphones, while expecting semiconductor business performance to face greater uncertainty. Information and technology, materials, and industrial sectors dragged the market amid concern on slowing global economy. On the other hand, India became the best performer, supported by Reliance Industries as the company booked strong financial performance and displayed renewed focus in making the retail business profitable.
